Who, the Indianian Says, Will Be Nominated on His Own Good Record.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 .- Suffrage conditions in the South, the sins of the Democratic party, the possible outcome in the national elections of this year and other interesting topics were injected into a speech delivered in the House to-day by Representative Charles B. Landis. The appearance of Mr. Landis on the floor prepared to read an indictment against the Democratic party was followed by the liveliest debate seen in the House this session. At times the exchanges between the Indiana man and his critics on the Democratic side were charged with humor, but on two or three occasions some bitterness was manifested, especially when Mr. Landis referred to the "shotgun" practices followed in Mississippi and other Southern States. Mr. Landis occupied the attention of the House for an hour and a half. He was followed closely by the Democrats, and when he declared that the party organizations in the South were unfair to their Republican brethren in making appointments on election boards several of the minority members jumped to their feet to deny the allegations of the man from Indiana.
